From the WORLD.

THE converſation happening a few evenings ago, to turn upon the different employments we maintain, we fell into the conſideration how ill the various parts of life are generally ſuited to the perſons who appear in them. This was attributed either to their own ambition, which tempts them to undertake a character they have not abilities to perform with credit, or to ſome accidental circumſtance, which throws them into profeſſions contrary, perhaps, both to their genius and inclination. All were unanimous in blaming thoſe parents, who force their children to enter into a way of life contrary to their natural bent, which generally points out the employment that is beſt adapted to their capacities. To this in a great meaſure we aſcribed the ſlow progreſs of arts and ſciences, the frequent failures and miſcarriages in life, and many of thoſe deſperate acts which are often the conſequences of them.

This converſation carried us through the greateſt part of the evening, till the company broke up and retired to reſt. But the weather being hot, and my ſenſes perfectly awake, I found it impoſſible to give way to ſleep; ſo that my thoughts ſoon returned to the late ſubject of the evening's entertainment. I recollected many inſtances of this miſapplication of parts and compaſſionated the unhappy effects of it. I reflected, that as all men have different ideas of pleaſures and honours, different views, inclinations and capacities; yet all concur in a deſire of pleaſing and exceeding; if that principle were applied to the proper point, and every one applied himſelf agreeably to his genius, what a wonderful effect it would ſoon have in the world! With how ſwift a progreſs would arts and ſciences grow up to perfection! And to what an amazing height would all kind of knowledge ſoon be carried! Men would no longer drudge on with diſtaſte and murmuring in a ſtudy they abhor; but every one would purſue with chearfulneſs his proper calling: buſineſs would become the higheſt pleaſure; diligence would be too univerſal to be eſteemed a virtue; and no man would be aſhamed of an employment, in which he appeared to advantage.

While my mind hung upon theſe reflections, I imperceptibly dropt aſleep. But my imagination ſurviving my reaſon, I ſoon entered into a dream, which (tho' mixed with wild flights and abſurdities) bore ſome analogy to my waking thoughts.

I fancied myſelf ſtill reflecting on the ſame ſubject, when I was ſuddenly ſnatched up into the air, and preſently found myſelf on the pinnacle of a temple at the right hand of Jupiter, who took me to his boſom, approved my thoughts, and would make an immediate experiment of the change I had been wiſhing for.

He had no ſooner pronounced theſe words, than I perceived a ſtrange hurry and confuſion in the lower world: all mankind were in motion, preparing to obey the tremendous nod.

Multitudes of the nobility began to ſtrip themſelves of their robes and coronets, and habited in different capacities of hoſtlers, coachmen, ſailors, fiſhers, and merry-andrews. I diſtinguiſhed two or three great perſonages who had dreſſed themſelves in white waiſtcoats, and with aprons wrapped about their heads, and ſprig-ſtuck round their waiſts, were buſied in ſeveral great kitchens, making conſiderable improvements in the noble art of cookery. A few of this illuſtrious rank, without quitting their honourable diſtinctions, applied themſelves to enlarging the diſcoveries, enlightening the underſtandings, rectifying the judgments, refining the taſtes, poliſhing the manners, improving the hearts, and by all poſſible methods promoting the intereſts of their fellow creatures.

I ſaw reverend prelates, who, tearing off their lawn, put themſelves into red coats, and ſoon obtained triumphs and ovations; while others dwindling into pariſh clarks, and village pedagogues. But I obſerved with pleaſure ſeveral of that ſacred order in my own country, who appeared calm and unchanged amidſt the general buſtle, and ſeemed to be deſigned originally to do honour to their exalted ſtations.

There were ſeveral grave old men, who threw off their ſcarlet robes, and retired to religious houſes. I ſaw with wonder ſome of theſe deſerted robes put on by private gentlemen, who, loſt in retirement and reſerve, were little imagined to be qualified for ſuch important poſts. But what more aſtoniſhed me was to ſee men of military rank throwing away their regimentals, and appearing with a much better grace in longer ſuits of ſcarlet. Some gentlemen of the robe, whom I had always regarded with reſpect and reverence, ſeemed now more awful and reſpectful than ever: one, in particular, greatly ſurprized me, by quitting the ſeat of judgment, which he had long filled with univerſal applauſe, till I ſaw him entering a more auguſt aſſembly, and afterwards paſſing to the cabinet of his prince, from whence he returned to the great hall, where firſt I obſerved him, and convinced me of the extent of his abilities, by appearing equally capable in all his employments.

I ſaw in a public aſſembly a junto of patriots, who, while they were haranguing on the corruption and iniquity of the times, broke off in the middle, and turned ſtock-jobbers and pawn-brokers. A group of critics at the Bedford coffee houſe were in an inſtant converted into haberdaſhers of ſmall ware in Cheapſide. Tranſlators, commentators and polemic divines, made for the moſt part very good cobblers, gold finders and rat-catchers. The chariot of a very eminent phyſician was tranſformed all at once into a cart, and the doctor to an executioner, faſhioning a halter round the neck of a criminal. I ſaw two very noted ſurgeons of my acquaintance in blue ſleeves and aprons, exerting themſelves notably in a ſlaughter-houſe near the Victualling-office.

A reverend divine, who was preaching in the fields to a numerous audience, recollected himſelf on a ſudden, and producing a ſet of cups and balls, performed ſeveral very curious tricks by ſlight of hand. The pretty gentlemen were every where uſefully employed in knotting, pickling, and making conſerves. The fine ladies remained as they were; for it was beyond even the omnipotence of Jupiter (without entirely changing their natures) to aſſign an office, in which they could be beneficial to mankind.

Several princes and potentates now relieved themſelves from the load of crowns and ſceptres, and entered with a good grace into private ſtations. Others put themſelves at the head of companies of banditti, formed of lawyers, public officers and exciſemen. Their prime miniſters had generally the honour of being their firſt lieutenants, and ſometimes enjoyed the ſole command; while the courtiers ranged themſelves under them in rank and file. But with what a heart-felt pleaſure did I obſerve an auguſt and venerable monarch, ſurrounded by a youthful band, with the moſt amiable countenances I had ever beheld! He wore a triple crown upon his head, which an angel held on, and over it a ſcroll, with this inſcription, FOR A GRATEFUL AND AFFECTIONATE PEOPLE.

The ſhops now began to be filled with people of diſtinction; and many a man ſtept with a genteel air, from behind the counter, into a great eſtate, or a poſt of honour.

The nobility were almoſt all changed throughout the world: for no man dared to anſwer to a title of ſuperiority, who was not conſcious of ſuperior excellence and virtue.

In the midſt of all this buſtle I was ſtruck with the appearance of a large bevy of beauties and women of the firſt faſhion, who with all the perfect confidence of good breeding, laſhed themſelves in the ſeveral temples dedicated to the Cyprian Venus, ſecure of the univerſal adorations and proſtrations of mankind. Others of inferior rank and fame, very unconcernedly purſued their domeſtic affairs, and the occupations of the needle or the toilette. But it was with ſecret pride that I obſerved a few of my dear country women quit their dreſſing rooms and card aſſemblies, and venture into the public, as candidates for fame and honours. One lady in particular, forced by the ſacred impulſe, I ſaw marching with modeſt compoſure to take poſſeſſion of the warden's lodgings in one of our colleges; but obſerving ſome young ſtudents at the gate, who began to [illegible] on the approach, the bluſhes forced from them with an air of pity mixed with contempt, and ſo like to her beloved ſex, confounded her reſolution, that doing all the good ſhe was poſſible in a private ſtation.

[illegible] ſeem now to be very much [illegible] offices of ſtate were filled [illegible] they accepted for the good of [illegible] own private enjoyment. [illegible] and ſolicitation with [illegible] for as no man could be prevailed on to accept an employment, for which he was not ſtrongly qualified, merit was the only claim to preferment.

Univerſal love and benevolence ſeemed to be the [illegible] and every one ſeemed to [illegible] improvements. All men were [illegible] except in ſerving; and no part was diſhonourable to one who could do well. In ſhort, the golden age of the poets ſeemed to be reſtored.

But while I was reflecting with joy and admiration on theſe glorious revolutions, the tumult of a midnight broil awaked me; and I found myſelf in a world, as full of folly and abſurdity as ever it was.

Verſes on a PEN, from a Poem juſt publiſhed.

LIGHT toy!—but in a ſkilful Hand,
More potent than a ſorcerer's Wand!
No Talisman, nor Charm nor Spell,
Nor all the witching Tricks of Hell,
Can with ſuch Potency controul,
And in Enchantment hold the Soul!
It's touches can create, transform,
Rouſe ſleeping Neptune with a Storm;
Or bid the howling Tempeſt ceaſe,
And rock old Ocean into Peace!
Can ſnatch from Time his Scythe at Will,
And make his glowing Wheels ſtand ſtill;
Pluck from Decay its rank'ring Tooth,
And give to Nature conſtant Youth.
Drawn by old Homer's Hand, the Roſe
Still on the Cheek of Helen blows.
Her Beauty ſuffers no Decay,
Nor moulder for the Worm a Prey;
Time's Chiſſel cuts no Wrinkles in
The Velvet Smoothneſs of her Skin:
Nor can the Thirſt of old Age ſip,
The dewy Moiſture of her Lip;
And now her Eyes ſo brilliant ſhew,
As Paris ſaw them long ago.
For tho' her beauteous Body muſt,
Have crumbled into native Duſt,
Yet ſtill her Features live in Song,
Live Helen, ever fair and young.
Fades the ſtick leafy grove? the Pen
Can bid the Verdure live again,
Can with Imagination's Dew
Cheriſh each Leaf to bloom anew,
And call forth greeneſt Wreaths t'endow
The Patriot's and the Poet's Brow.
In a fine Phrenſy of the Soul,
When Poet's glance from Pole to Pole,
Bearing on viſionary Wings
The ſhadowy Forms of real Things;
When Eagle plum'd they ſoar on high
To bring down Virtue from the Sky;
Or cowring low upon the Wing,
Vice's grim Form from Hell they bring,
The Pen, each Phantom which they bear
Embodies, ere it melts to Air;
To each fugacious Image gives
A Fixedneſs, and while it lives
Arreſts the fleeting Thought, before
It vaniſhes, and is no more—
Uſleſs were Study, vain the Toil
Of Sages, o'er the Midnight Oil,
Profitleſs their Labours to Mankind,
The Harveſt to themſelves confin'd,
Cadmus' Art did not tranſmit
Their Knowledge, and embalm their Wit.

CHARLES-TOWN, April 13, 1767.

IN a Court of General Seſſions of the Peace, Oyer and Terminer, Aſſize and General Goal Delivery, which was opened the 18th paſt and ended the 25th, the following Perſons were capitally convicted, viz.

ANTONIO CHRISTIAN, of Murder
EPHRAIM JONES, } of Robbery from the Houſe
SOLOMON RIVERS, }
ANTHONY DISTOL, of Robbery on the Highway
JOHN RYAN, of Larceny from the Houſe
JAMES KAY, of Horſeſtealing.

Who all accordingly received Sentence of Death. Chriſtian was hanged the 31ſt. Jones was to have been executed the ſame day, but reprieved for Six Months. And Rivers, Diſtol, Ryan, and Kay, who were ſentenced to be hanged laſt Wedneſday, have received His Majeſty's moſt gracious Pardon, granted by His Excellency the Governor.

Thurſday laſt arrived here, His Majeſty's Packet Boat the Grantham, commanded by Capt. James Bull. In thirteen Days from Penſacola; who informs us, that Brigadier General Haldiman, Commander in Chief of His Majeſty's Forces in the Southern Diſtrict of North America, arrived there the 25th paſt, in His Majeſty's Ship Cygnet, commanded by Philip Durell, Eſq; from Jamaica; and that the Cygnet, which is appointed for this Station, before ſhe comes here, is to go to Havana, where the Active Frigate had received ſome Inſult.

On Friday laſt His Excellency JOHN WENTWORTH, Eſq; accompanied by Capt. Loring ſet out, by Land, for his Government of New-Hampſhire.

At the ſame Time PETER DE LANCEY, Eſq; D. Poſtmaſter General for the Southern Diſtrict, of North-America, ſet out for Virginia, there to meet the D. Poſtmaſter General for the Northern diſtrict, and concert ſuch Meaſures for eſtabliſhing inland Poſts, as will be moſt conducive to the General Utility. At preſent, Poſts are eſtabliſhed in all the Northern Diſtrict, as far as Suffolk in Virginia. Mr. De Lancey's View is, to extend them from thence, thro' North-Carolina, to this Town; which we may entertain Hopes will be accompliſhed, as the Aſſembly of North-Carolina have voted a Sum, equal to One Hundred Pounds Sterling, for that Service. It will then remain for the Office to be enabled to continue it, thro' Georgia, to St. Auguſtine in Eaſt-Florida, which it ſeems to be generally wiſhed may be the Caſe upon Mr. De Lancey's Return.

Capt. Dawſon, who arrived here laſt Friday, from the Bay of Honduras, informs, that he left 70 Sail of Engliſh Veſſels in that Bay, and 18 more were daily expected from Jamaica; that the Spaniards had lately begun to diſturb the Logwood Cutters, by burning the Houſes, killing the Cattle, and carrying off the Negroes of the oldeſt Settlers in the Rio Honda, which, as no Man of War was there, might poſſibly produce ſome further Diſturbances, the Engliſh Sailors being extremely exaſperated at theſe Proceedings.

Saturday the 4th Inſtant died, after a lingering Indiſpoſition, Capt. William Cutter, Maſter of the Ship Argo, of Scarborough, a Gentleman who was as much eſteemed, as his death is now regretted.

The Diligence Man of War, commanded by Capt. Charles Roach, arrived at Port Royal in Jamaica the 20th of February, from England.

In a Jamaica News Paper of the 21ſt of February, we are informed, that on the 17th a new Town, called Peterſfield, was laid out at Port Morant Bay in that Iſland; and that when the Number of Lots came to be added up, they amounted to FORTY-FIVE; the Proprietors all Scotchmen, except three Iriſh.

The Young Warrior of Eſtatoewih, 'tis ſaid, is gone out, with a large Party, intending to ſurprize, if he can, an Encampment which the Northern Indians, who are Enemies to the Cherokees, have in North-Carolina, whence the ſcalping Parties that have done ſo much Miſchief in the Cherokee Country lately have been detached.

The new EXCHANGE and CUSTOM-HOUSE (for the building of which a Bill has been read three Times in the Commons Houſe of Aſſembly of this Province, and, we hear, now lies before His Majeſty's Council) according to an approved Plan, is to be 92 Feet long, and 72 Feet wide, and will be an elegant Structure.

Tueſday laſt John Matthews, Eſq; took his Seat in the Hon. Commons Houſe of Aſſembly of this Province, as a Repreſentative for the Pariſh of St. Helena, in the Room of William Harvey, Eſq; who declined ſerving.

The 2d Inſtant, Ralph Izard, Eſq; and Captain Hodgſon, of his Majeſty's 21ſt. Regiment, embarked for New York, in the Sloop Sally, Capt. Schermerhorn.

There are now no more than 46 Sail of Sea Veſſels in this Port, viz. 18 Ships, 5 Snows, 10 Brigantines, 1 Scooner, and 11 Sloops; (excluſive of 10 clear'd, 1 Man of War, 1 Tender, and 2 Packet-Boats) of which 19 are loading, 2 have put in loaded, 4 are up for Sale, and ſome are going away in Ballaſt.
